Collision at intersection takes the life of Bethel woman

By ALISON ALOISIO

A Bethel woman died Monday night as a result of injuries sustained in a car accident at the intersection of Route 2 and the Parkway.

Phyllis Dock, 81, was a passenger in a 1992 Hyundai driven by her husband, Norman, 84.

Dock was attempting to turn left onto Route 2 from the Parkway at about 11:30 a.m. He did not see a westbound potato truck driven by Raymond Hoyt, 58, of Bryant Pond, according to Darren Tripp, Bethel police chief. The truck struck the Dock car broadside.

The Docks were taken to Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway by Bethel Rescue. Phyllis Dock was then transported by helicopter to Central Maine Medical Center in Lewiston, where she died that evening. Norman Dock was treated and released from Stephens Memorial.

Neither Hoyt nor his passenger, Michael Hoyt, 36, was injured in the crash, Tripp said. The truck, a 1983 International, owned by Ladd Farms of Rumford, sustained $1,000 in damages.

The accident is still under investigation, Tripp said.

Restaurants doing well a year after smoking ban

By ALISON ALOISIO

Business has remained just as good as before, and in some cases, has even improved.

That's the consensus of several Bethel businesses at the one-year anniversary of Maine's restaurant law banning smoking.

"We've got more people coming in who don't smoke," said Elaine Pitkin of the Bottle & Bag.

Her smoking customers now go outside for a cigarette. "I have some sympathy for those who can't enjoy a smoke after a meal," she said.

Pitkin said she gets some comments from out-of-state customers who aren't used to the ban. "They'll say, 'Oh, yeah, this is Maine, you can't smoke.'"

Other states having similar laws are California, Utah, Maryland and Vermont.

But Pitkin said that overall, she favors the ban. "I think (the law) is fine," she said. "It's better for the customers."

It's also better for the employees. "Now I only have bacon grease to clean up," said Pitkin. "I don't have bacon grease and cigarette butts."

Across the street at Pat's Pizza, manager Donna Gillis shares that sentiment.

"We love it," she said. Her non-smoking bartender, said Gillis, is particularly happy not to have customers blowing smoke in his face. And, she said, the ban eliminates the smoke film build-up on walls.

Harvest Fest charmer, and friend

Gould Nordic Asst. AD striding toward Salt Lake City

By AMY CHAPMAN

While many of us focus our attention this month on Sydney, Australia and the unfolding events of the 2000 Summer Olympics, Gould Academy faculty member David Chamberlain has his eye on Salt Lake City and the 2002 Winter Games.

For the 24-year-old Nordic skier from Wilton, competing in the Olympics has been on his mind and in his dreams for almost as long as he can remember. When Chamberlain first began Nordic skiing at age seven, in an after-school program run by Judy and Tom Upham of Wilton, it didn't take him long to figure out that he liked to ski fast — really fast.

After several years of seasoning in Bill Koch Youth Ski League races, he was ready to take on the best high school racers in the Northeast as a member of Mt. Blue High School's cross-country ski team. In 1994, his last year of high school, he took fifth place in the Junior Olympics and was named the Portland Press Herald's Skier of the Year.

Chamberlain's success in the sport continued through college at Bates, where he earned a B.S. degree in mathematics and was captain of the ski team during his junior and senior years, receiving a Senior Citation for excellence in Nordic skiing.

In 1998, his senior year, he took first place in both the 10-kilometer Skate and the 10K Classic races of the Eastern Cup Championships at Sugarloaf. Bates College presented him with the Lloyd Lux Award for sports and citizenship, and he was inducted into the Lewiston Sports Hall of Fame.

Since college, Chamberlain has been training full-time and racing for the Fischer/Salomon/Subaru Factory Team.

Voters will decide on eminent domain

Asked to take land to relocate road, so runway project can move ahead

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Town voters will decide Nov. 7 if the relocation of a 700-foot section of dirt road will block the proposed $2 million expansion of the Bethel Airport runway.

In order for the expansion to move ahead, the town has to clear the airspace over land on either side of the proposed runway. Clearing the airspace includes removing not only standing physical objects, but also roads — which in the view of the Federal Aviation Administration pose the threat of vehicles or the dust they might raise intruding into the airspace.

So called "aviation easements" are the tool of choice in such case. Under such an easement the town pays abutting landowners a modest amount of money in return for the authority to keep the air corridor clear.

Bethel has successfully negotiated 18 such easements, at a total cost of $167,400 (which does not come out of town pockets).

But attempts to secure the final easement have reached an impasse, leaving the town with only two options: abandon the runway project, or "take" the necessary easement by eminent domain.

On Friday, town selectmen voted unanimously — but with obvious reluctance — to begin the easement process. The final decision on the matter now lies with town voters.

Road in wrong place

The easement in question would allow the town to relocate 700 feet of existing road, the Davis Road, onto property owned by Richard and Mary Valentine.

The road — which is currently located on land owned by the town and one other private landowner — is used to access otherwise landlocked parcels of woodlands to the northwest of the runway.

The owners of those properties hold rights of way the town is obliged to honor, but the FAA is holding firm in its demand that the road be moved further from the runway.

That means moving it to the Valentines' property, but the Valentines have turned down the town's offer of $12,200 for the necessary easement.

Numerous negotiations have failed to resolve the situation, leading to the selectmen's vote Friday.

'The hardest decision'

The vote to ask approval to take the easement by eminent domain was unanimous. (Selectman Reggie Brown, present Friday only by

Ch. IV studio manager building his networks

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

Channel IV, the Bethel area cable TV station, is back on the air after asbestos removal at Telstar forced a broadcast shutdown over the summer. Viewers tuning in this fall can expect local TV to be better than ever, due in part to the efforts of Andrew Wheeler.

Producing local programming at Channel IV is a broad-based effort, involving dedicated volunteers and one paid staff position: studio manager, held by Wheeler.

Wheeler, a station volunteer since 1997, took over as studio manager last March. "I do a little bit of everything," he said. "I schedule the weekly programs, tape new programs, and I'm currently involved with the Adelphia negotiations for the local towns participating in Channel IV." He also teaches volunteers how to use the technically daunting equipment that fills the studio.

Joe Cole of West Paris tapes community events for the station. Last Tuesday night, Cole and Wheeler worked on putting a title and credits on Cole's video of the West Paris Old Home Days, held last summer.

Cole attempted to gain mastery of the "titler," which inserts text into a videotape. This device, with a tiny screen and a keyboard, harkens back to the early days of personal computers, and requires knowledge of its idiosyncrasies to use effectively.

Wheeler could have done the titles in a few minutes, but he spent over an hour teaching Cole how to run the machine. When the video runs on Channel IV in October, it will be the work of Cole completely. Along the way, Cole picked up knowledge of a new studio technique to add to the other video skills he had already acquired from Wheeler.

Bringing volunteers into active Channel IV production is important to Wheeler.

"I want people watching to understand what the Bethel area is all about," he said. He believes having local people producing local programming help promotes that philosophy.

"We have a little religion, school sports, government, and local talk shows. But I'd like to see more student-produced programming from the kids at Telstar and Gould. I'd also like to see more outdoor-related programming."

Community-based broadcasts

When cable first came to the area, the contracts with each town included provisions for community access to a channel for public education and governmental purposes. Under this provision, Channel IV, one of a number of local-access studios across the state, produces local programming for broadcast to Bethel, Woodstock, Greenwood,

MANY CONTRIBUTED TO BDC

To the Editor:

Thanks to the Bethel Citizen and to Bill Ullman for their kind remarks about the work of Bethel Data Corporation over the last six years.

I don't want anyone to have the impression that one, or two, folks alone have been fully responsible for the accomplishments of the organization. Many have participated in our work, beginning with the early donors who trusted the fledgling organization with their gifts of funding.

The current Board members require special mention, as they've been instrumental in the organization's successes. Thanks to Polly Davis, Jonathan Goldberg, Peter Kuzik, David Murphy, Cathy Newell, Bruce Powell, Jeff Rosenblatt and Tom Zicarelli for their tireless efforts on behalf of the community.

THANK YOU FOR THE FLOWERS

To the Editor:

Carol Nielsen and her large group of Garden Club members have done an exceptional job of beautifying Bethel. Many hours have been put into painting, watering and caring for the flowers on Route 2, Town Office and upper Main Street. Jane Vogt's garden is her pet contribution.

Many thanks to all for beautifying Bethel.

SUPPORTS DEROCHE

To the Editor:

Very soon we will be electing a man to be our state Senator from District 24. We are fortunate to have a great candidate in Joe Deroche.

In our town he is well known for his leadership, integrity and knowledge. He has brought back life to our small town that was dying partly due to downsizing of our local mill.

One has only to visit our town to see the results of Joe's work, and the picture looks even brighter in the near future with new businesses coming soon.

He listens to our problems and helps to solve them; he will work to help us all with our healthcare, education, taxes, economic development and small businesses.

He is one who has shown his appreciation for volunteers and will work with us all to make our state of Maine and District 24 a great place in which to live.

Please vote.

HARVEST FEST ART AVAILABLE

To the Editor:

Anyone who didn't have the privilege of observing Ken Irons in action Saturday morning on the common wielding his chainsaw can see the finished product is now outside the Chamber of Commerce. The five-and-one-half-foot tall, 22-inch diameter woodcarving was one of the highlights of Saturday's third annual Harvest Fest held on the common.

In just three hours, Irons created a beautifully detailed sculpture of a bear that is now being raffled off. Proceeds from the raffle will be presented in the form of two $250 scholarships to students of Region 9 and Oxford Hills Technical School who are furthering their pursuit of a profession in forestry.

Four students and their instructors were present at Saturday's event and conducted safety briefings, as well as logging demonstrations and contests. (Please look for the Chamber of Commerce column in this week's paper for more details.)

Tickets for Ken Irons' chainsaw art are available at the chamber office (824-2282) and are $3 each or 2 for $5. The drawing will be held Thursday, Oct. 26.

Also available at the chamber office are full color prints of Jewel Clark's Harvest Moon mandala, the brilliant circle design used on this year's Harvest Fest posters. They are 10-by-10 inches, with a foam backing, and are ready to be framed.

HARVEST FEST THANKS

To the Editor:

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce would like to thank all those involved with planning and supporting the third annual Bethel Harvest Fest. The committee met for months and did a terrific job. Many thanks to Al and Jackie Cressy, Marvin Collins, Jette Black, Jed Dole and Susan Herlihy, as well as staff members Emily Beers and Tricia Swain. The event would not have been possible without the help of our financial partners: Adelphia, Mead, Sysco Food Services of Northern New England, Sunday River Ski Resort and Hancock Lumber. Our gratitude to Ernest Angevine and Chadbourne Tree Farms for donating timbers for both the chain saw carving and for the logging demonstration, to Gould Academy for the tables, to CPS for the chairs and to Ken Irons for the incredible sculpture. Many thanks to all the businesses who hosted events and especially to the volunteers that worked at the festival. They are: Al and Jackie Cressy, Marvin Collins, Dillon Gillies, Jette Black, Dave Freiday, Burt Best, Doug Zinchuk, Michele Varuolo, Barbara Douglass, Tom and Marcello DeLuca, Beth Saunders, Sara Roderick, Ruth Silver, JoAnn Best and Jim Largess. We also had the pleasure of working with the Future Business Leaders of America: Krista Hoy, Angela Hooper, Caeri Meader, Sarah Gamble, Sam Howe, Becca Swan, Rachel Monk and two seventh-grade boys, Jason and Tom. What a wonderful day it was.

A tremendous thank you to the following restaurants for making this year's Chowdah Fest a huge success: Bethel Inn & Country Club, Briar Lea, Café DiCocoa, Chapman Inn, Good Food Store, Java House, the Loon's Nest at Kezar Lake Marina, the Sudbury Inn, Sunday River Brewing Company, and the Victoria.

Congratulations to the Sudbury Inn, winner of both the chowdah cup and the People's Choice award. The logging demos and contests were led by students of Region 9 and Oxford Hills Technical School led by instructors Marc Dupuis and Al Schaeffer.

Thank you to Jewel Clark who designed the art used for the Harvest Fest poster.

Easement

telephone, abstained due to the uncertain legal status of casting a vote by telephone, but he indicated support for the action.)

Each selectman portrayed the vote as a last-resort action, one they took with great reluctance.

But each also said he felt the town had no choice at this point, especially in light of the time and money that have already been put into the project.

Chairman Dutch Dresser said he was extremely saddened by the situation, but "when hard decisions come along, ultimately you have to make hard choices and not everybody comes out happy."

"If we make that decision I'd like it to be made because we think the end result is worth the pain to the community it will clearly cost."

Don Bennett said the decision was "probably the hardest decision I've had to make in my short tenure on the board."

But, he added, "We've gone through a great amount of work to get to this point. These airport expansions don't take place by chance. The airport authority and the people connected with it have worked literally years to make this all come about. We're talking about a couple of million dollars that can be spent here to extend this runway. We're talking about an integral part of a transportation system I guess I see as necessary to any growth in town."

Brown agreed, citing the small amount of land involved (.4 acre) and "the fact it's out in the middle of a swamp."

Al Barth said: "I'm sorry we've come to this, but I think we're too far down the road to stop now. I think the amount for the easement is very generous, and I think the impact is minimal on the Valentines' land."

Bob Everett said he did not see the need for the runway expansion or for the airport itself.

"If the airport could go away I'd be happy," but, he said, "that's my personal opinion, and I'm not here to pursue that opinion, I'm here to try to protect the town's interest."

He joined the others in voting to put the matter to the voters.

A matter of principal

The deadlock is not a matter of price, said Richard Valentine; it is a matter of principal.

He noted that he and his sister have already granted the town avialational easements over 26 of the woodlot's 100 acres. For the 22 acres involved in the runway expansion they were paid $5,100, a small sum in view of the future impact on the tree harvest.

To manage a tree farm, he said, "you have to be able to cut trees, and if you can only cut little trees, the area is pretty much taken out of the tree-growing business." (He noted the FAA has granted a waiver allowing the trees on the 22-acre parcel another ten years to grow.)

The land in question has been in the Valentine family since 1865, he said, and managed as a tree farm since 1965.

He said he worried that putting the road over his parcel would open it to the public, including "all the hunters and all the poachers and all the lovers. We have a tree farm," he said, "and we don't want to see it burned down."

He suggested other options were available to the town and the FAA, including leaving the road where it is and gating it, or running the road across a much smaller (.13 acre) part of the tree farm.

That route runs over a swamp, and putting the road there would be more costly (due in large part to environmental regulations), but it's doable, he said, "and we believe they have no right to take more land than they need."

The FAA has so far rejected these options, but if the town pushed, he said, the agency could be made to change its mind.

As a pilot, Korean War veteran and former aircraft engineer, he noted, he was familiar with the culture of the FAA.

"You go up the line until you get to someone who has had the experience and has made the compromises — and who can say 'yes.'"

The Valentine family has cooperated regarding the airport for 50 years, he said, "but this road business is the straw that broke the camel's back. We've taken a stand and we hope the town will support us."

Different world views

Underlying the conflict, Dresser said Friday, may be different perspectives on what is best for Bethel, especially regarding growth.

Earlier that day, he said, he had had a pleasant, if unfruitful, visit with the Valentines, who were forthright in their opinion that Bethel was better off with less rather than more growth.

"They're not much interested in seeing Bethel grow," Dresser said, "It's (Richard's) view that folks ought to let young people leave town and go somewhere else, get a job, get dirty, get some money, come back to find a small, quiet town to retire to which is peaceful. I'm sure he isn't the only one who holds that view."

Valentine later said Dresser's description was basically accurate (although he disagreed somewhat with the choice of words).

A childhood in Pittsburgh and a career in Hartford, he said, had deepened his appreciation for the character of Bethel.

"We don't want to see the town of Bethel turned into a Pittsburgh, or into a North Conway," he said, "and that's slowly happening."

Nonetheless, "we're not trying to hold up the airport," he said, only to protect the land and be treated fairly.

On the matter of growth, Dresser took a different view.

"Our job as adults in the community," he said, "is to leave the town better on an infrastructure basis than we found it — in hopes that the kids behind us will have a good, solid platform on which to build their economic and social and spiritual lives."

He summed up the situation as "just an awful shame. Usually these political issues come down to differences of world view, plain and simple. And their world view is every bit as healthy and as valid as my world view."

On Nov. 7 Bethel voters will make their own views known.

Newry votes funds at special meeting

NEWRY—Voters at a special Town Meeting Monday authorized the purchase of a fire truck and transferred other funds to the Fire Department for firefighter training. The pumper/tanker truck will be purchased for $231,350. Training will be funded by $4,800 originally approved for the Bethel/Newry transit system. The system was voted in by Newry residents earlier this year, but turned down by Bethel voters. In other business at Monday's special meeting, voters approved revisions to the Unified Development Review Ordinance, the shoreland zoning ordinance and the shoreland zoning map. The two dozen people in attendance passed over another article that had proposed accepting a donation of 25 acres of land along the Sunday River from Tim Cohee. Cohee had originally offered to donate the landlocked parcel to the town. He was then contacted by Bill Herlihy, who lives across the river from the land. Herlihy asked the parcel be donated to him instead, and Cohee agreed, according to town officials.

Tourism office hard to find, says MTA

BETHEL—The Maine Tourism Association office, located at the Evans Notch Ranger Station on Route 2, is losing visitors as a result of Bethel's ban on MDOT directional signs, an official said Tuesday. Vaughn Stinson of MTA was one of about a dozen businesspeople attending a public hearing regarding possible changes to the town's sign ordinance. Several said the restrictiveness of the regulations prevents them from having adequate signage to direct people to their business. The blue MDOT signs have been replaced by a system of kiosks and international signs. Stinson said the number of visitors at the office has declined from 17,000 two years ago to an expected 11,000 this year. People who have come to the MTA office, he said, often say they had trouble finding it. The MTA took down its original directional sign to comply with the Bethel ordinance, which went into effect three years ago. A committee is currently studying the sign ordinance and plans to have a proposed revised version for next spring.

Scenic Byway meeting tonight

UPTON—The Route 26 Scenic Byway Corridor Management committee will hold a public information session Sept. 28 at 7 p.m. at the old school in Upton. CME members will present information about the progress of the planning and application process. Members of the Maine Department of Transportation staff will also be available to hear comments about the scenic byway program.

GMA coming to Sunday River again

NEWRY—Good Morning America will visit Sunday River Ski Resort for the second time this year to feature a look at the new sport of mountainboarding. The live broadcast will take place on Wednesday, Oct. 4. The show also visited Sunday River during the summer for the North American Wife-Carrying Contest.

BETHEL—The 20th annual Bethel Outing Club Ski Sale will take place at the Gould Academy Field House, Friday, Oct. 27 from 6:30 to 9 p.m., and Saturday, Oct. 28, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Individuals may bring equipment to sell, subject to a 15 percent consignment fee, on Oct. 27 after 3 p.m. Ski shops interested in bringing merchandise to the sale who have not already reserved space should contact Ann Speth at 824-2586. Waterslides on view soon

NEWRY—The BIG Adventure Center has purchased waterslides currently located at Sunday River Ski Resort. Construction for the new site is expected to begin immediately. The slides will be installed adjacent to the center's new miniature golf course and in front of the center's main building. Completion of the project is scheduled for this fall so winter visitors can see the slides as they drive by on Route 2.

MCS picked for national program

BRYANT POND—The Maine Conservation School has been selected as the Eastern United States site for the American Wilderness Leadership School. MCS was selected in a national competition. AWSL is a week-long program for educators and resource personnel seeking challenging educational experiences in the fields of wildlife ecology, management and conservation, together with firearms safety, wilderness survival, fly fishing and tying, interpretive techniques and outdoor ethics. The school may offer the program as early as the summer of 2001.

MVHS to change graduation?

RUMFORD—The SAD43 Board of Directors will consider whether to change graduation for Mountain Valley High School from Sundays to Saturdays. At a recent board meeting, several people said it would be advantageous to make the change because it would provide more time for families to be together. The issue will be discussed formally at the next board meeting.

Driver in King accident found dead

FRYEBURG—Bryan Smith, the man whose van struck Maine author Stephen King last year, was found dead at his home Friday. Smith's brother asked the Oxford County Sheriff's Department to check on him after relatives had not heard from him in three days. Officers were able to see him lying in bed through a window, but he did not respond. Officials were awaiting the results of an autopsy. Smith reportedly had been on medication for a disability, but his brother said he was not aware of any life-threatening disabilities.

Hazardous waste day Saturday

GREENWOOD—The first Greenwood Hazardous Waste Day will take place Saturday from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the fire station on Howe Hill Road. Marie Bartlett, manager of the Greenwood-Woodstock Solid Waste, said some acceptable items are fertilizer, insecticides, oil-based paint, old oven cleaner and anything poisonous. Materials must be in containers. For more information call the Town Office at 875-2773 or the transfer station at 875-3770.

Candidate breakfast planned

NEWRY—The Western Maine Legislative Caucus will sponsor three "candidate forums" in response to input from constituents and legislators across the region. The caucus will hold three breakfasts before the election, including one on Oct. 11 at 7:30 a.m. at the Summit Hotel in Newry. The caucus will distribute its third copy of western Maine candidates' responses to a comprehensive questionnaire focused on regional and state issues at each event. The breakfasts are open to the public. For more information call 778-7274.

River blessing rescheduled

RUMFORD POINT—A "Blessing of the River," postponed last weekend because of rain, will take place Oct. 1 at 2:15 p.m. at the Rumford Point Congregational Church, rain or shine. The program will emphasize the historic role of the Androscoggin River in the Rumford area. Those wishing to come by canoe may put in at the boat landing in Hanover. Stony Brook Campground will also provide canoes at the landing for people who wish to ride (be there at 1 p.m.). At the close of the program at the church, the congregation will proceed to the bridge for the blessing and will strew flowers and corn on the river.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Fleeing driver caught later

At 11:04 p.m. on Sept. 22 police observed a vehicle traveling north on Route 26 without a license plate displayed. The officer turned on the cruiser lights, and the vehicle turned into a parking lot. The driver and two occupants then left the vehicle and fled on foot. As the officer left the cruiser to give chase, he observed the subject's vehicle traveling toward him in reverse. It then struck the front of the cruiser and stopped.

At 11:04 p.m. police questioned a subject who was an occupant in a vehicle in which the operator fled the scene of a traffic stop. During questioning the subject denied any knowledge of the identity of the driver or two other occupants who fled. Further investigation determined the identities of the other subjects. Marie D. Anderson, 42, of Gilead was charged with hindering apprehension. (See Sept. 23.)

Monday, Sept. 18

At 4:12 p.m. police stopped a subject for speeding on Route 26. A license check showed it was under suspension. Shannon M. Gannon, 30, was charged with operating after suspension.

Friday, Sept. 22

At 10:45 p.m. on Sept. 22 police observed a subject sitting in his vehicle on Railroad Street. The subject, out on bail, was subject to search and test, no use or possession of alcohol or drugs. The subject smelled of an intoxicating liquor and admitted to drinking. Beer was also found in the back seat. Jeffrey A. Alanskas of Stoneham was arrested and taken to the Oxford County Jail.

Saturday, Sept. 23

At 8:50 a.m. police made contact with a subject regarding an incident that occurred the previous evening. Stephen Taylor was issued summonses for operating an unregistered motor vehicle, failure to submit to arrest or detention and driving to endanger.

Sunday, Sept. 24

At 6:20 p.m. police observed a vehicle operating left of the center line on Main Street. The vehicle did the same thing on Railroad Street. The officer stopped it. A license check showed a suspended status. Robert M. Handweger, 53, of Providence, R.I. was arrested and taken to the Oxford County Jail.

At 11 p.m. police observed a vehicle traveling south on Main Street above the posted speed limit. The officer stopped the vehicle. The officer smelled the odor of marijuana. The subject admitted he had smoked recently, and surrendered a marijuana pipe. The officer then said he would search the vehicle. The subject said there was marijuana in the trunk. The subject was then given field sobriety tests, and he did not pass them. Jason York, 19, was arrested for OUI and trafficking in schedule Z drugs. He was also summoned for possession of drug paraphernalia, illegal transportation of drugs by a minor and imprudent speed.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log. It lists all cases of adults being summoned or arrested, but does not include all reports of other police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies.

MANY CONTRIBUTED TO BDC

To the Editor:

Thanks to the Bethel Citizen and to Bill Ullman for their kind remarks about the work of Bethel Data Corporation over the last six years.

I don't want anyone to have the impression that one, or two, folks alone have been fully responsible for the accomplishments of the organization. Many have participated in our work, beginning with the early donors who trusted the fledgling organization with their gifts of funding.

The current Board members require special mention, as they've been instrumental in the organization's successes. Thanks to Polly Davis, Jonathan Goldberg, Peter Kuzyk, David Murphy, Cathy Newell, Bruce Powell, Jeff Rosenblatt and Tom Zicarelli for their tireless efforts on behalf of the community.

THANK YOU FOR THE FLOWERS

To the Editor:

Carol Nielsen and her large group of Garden Club members have done an exceptional job of beautifying Bethel. Many hours have been put into planting, watering and caring for the flowers on Route 2, Town Office and upper Main Street. Jane Vogt's garden is her pet contribution.

Many thanks to all for beautifying Bethel.

SUPPORTS DEROUICHE

To the Editor:

Very soon we will be electing a man to be our state Senator from District 24. We are fortunate to have a great candidate in Joe Derouiche.

In our town he is well known for his leadership, integrity and knowledge. He has brought back life to our small town that was dying partly due to downsizing of our local mill.

One has only to visit our town to see the results of Joe's work, and the picture looks even brighter in the near future with new businesses coming soon.

He listens to our problems and helps to solve them; he will work to help us all with our healthcare, education, taxes, economic development and small businesses.

He is one who has shown his appreciation for volunteers and will work with us all to make our state of Maine and District 24 a great place in which to live.

Please vote.

HARVEST FEST ART AVAILABLE

To the Editor:

Anyone who didn't have the privilege of observing Ken Irons in action Saturday morning on the common wielding his chainsaw can see the finished product is now outside the Chamber of Commerce. The five-and-one-half-foot tall, 22-inch diameter woodcarving was one of the highlights of Saturday's third annual Harvest Fest held on the common.

In just three hours, Irons created a beautifully detailed sculpture of a bear that is now being raffled off. Proceeds from the raffle will be presented in the form of two $250 scholarships to students of Region 9 and Oxford Hills Technical School who are furthering their pursuit of a profession in forestry.

Four students and their instructors were present at Saturday's event and conducted safety briefings, as well as logging demonstrations and contests. (Please look for the Chamber of Commerce column in this week's paper for more details.)

Tickets for Ken Irons' chainsaw art are available at the chamber office (824-2282) and are $3 each or 2 for $5. The drawing will be held Thursday, Oct. 26.

Also available at the chamber office are full color prints of Jewel Clark's Harvest Moon mandala, the brilliant circle design used on this year's Harvest Fest posters. They are 10-by-10 inches, with a foam backing, and are ready to be framed.

HARVEST FEST THANKS

To the Editor:

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce would like to thank all those involved with planning and supporting the third annual Bethel Harvest Fest. The committee met for months and did a terrific job. Many thanks to Al and Jackie Cressy, Marvin Collins, Jette Black, Jed Dole and Susan Herlihy, as well as staff members Emily Beers and Tricia Swain. The event would not have been possible without the help of our financial partners: Adelphia, Mead, Sysco Food Services of Northern New England, Sunday River Ski Resort and Hancock Lumber. Our gratitude to Ernest Angevine and Chadbourne Tree Farms for donating timbers for both the chain saw carving and for the logging demonstration, to Gould Academy for the tables, to CPS for the chairs and to Ken Irons for the incredible sculpture. Many thanks to all the businesses who hosted events and especially to the volunteers that worked at the festival. They are: Al and Jackie Cressy, Marvin Collins, Dillon Gillies, Jette Black, Dave Freiday, Burt Best, Doug Zinchuk, Michele Varuolo, Barbara Douglass, Tom and Marcello DeLuca, Beth Saunders, Sara Roderick, Ruth Silver, JoAnn Best and Jim Largess. We also had the pleasure of working with the Future Business Leaders of America: Krista Hoy, Angela Hooper, Caeri Meader, Sarah Gamble, Sam Howe, Becca Swan, Rachel Monk and two seventh-grade boys, Jason and Tom. What a wonderful day it was.

A tremendous thank you to the following restaurants for making this year's Chowdah Fest a huge success: Bethel Inn & Country Club, Briar Lea, Café DiCocoa, Chapman Inn, Good Food Store, Java House, the Loo's Nest at Kezar Lake Marina, the Sudbury Inn, Sunday River Brewing Company, and the Victoria. Congratulations to the Sudbury Inn, winner of both the chowdah cup and the People's Choice award. The logging demos and contests were led by students of Region 9 and Oxford Hills Technical School led by instructors Marc Dupuis and Al Schaeffer.

Thank you to Jewel Clark who designed the art used for the Harvest Fest poster.

Easement

telephone, abstained due to the uncertain legal status of casting a vote by telephone, but he indicated support for the action.)

Each selectman portrayed the vote as a last-resort action, one they took with great reluctance.

But each also said he felt the town had no choice at this point, especially in light of the time and money that have already been put into the project.

Chairman Dutch Dresser said he was extremely saddened by the situation, but "when hard decisions come along, ultimately you have to make hard choices and not everybody comes out happy."

"If we make that decision I'd like it to be made because we think the end result is worth the pain to the community it will clearly cost."

Don Bennett said the decision was "probably the hardest decision I've had to make in my short tenure on the board."

But, he added, "We've gone through a great amount of work to get to this point. These airport expansions don't take place by chance. The airport authority and the people connected with it have worked literally years to make this all come about. We're talking about a couple of million dollars that can be spent here to extend this runway. We're talking about an integral part of a transportation system I guess I see as necessary to any growth in town."

Brown agreed, citing the small amount of land involved (.4 acre) and "the fact it's out in the middle of a swamp."

Al Barth said: "I'm sorry we've come to this, but I think we're too far down the road to stop now. I think the amount for the easement is very generous, and I think the impact is minimal on the Valentines' land."

Bob Everett said he did not see the need for the runway expansion or for the airport itself.

"If the airport could go away I'd be happy," but, he said, "that's my personal opinion, and I'm not here to pursue that opinion, I'm here to try to protect the town's interest."

He joined the others in voting to put the matter to the voters.

A matter of principal

The deadlock is not a matter of price, said Richard Valentine; it is a matter of principal.

He noted that he and his sister have already granted the town aviation easements over 26 of the woodlot's 100 acres. For the 22 acres involved in the runway expansion they were paid $5,100, a small sum in view of the future impact on the tree harvest.

To manage a tree farm, he said, "you have to be able to cut trees, and if you can only cut little trees, the area is pretty much taken out of the tree-growing business." (He noted the FAA has granted a waiver allowing the trees on the 22-acre parcel another ten years to grow.)

The land in question has been in the Valentine family since 1865, he said, and managed as a tree farm since 1965.

He said he worried that putting the road over his parcel would open it to the public, including "all the hunters and all the poachers and all the lovers. We have a tree farm," he said, "and we don't want to see it burned down."

He suggested other options were available to the town and the FAA, including leaving the road where it is and gating it, or running the road across a much smaller (.13 acre) part of the tree farm.

That route runs over a swamp, and putting the road there would be more costly (due in large part to environmental regulations), but it's doable, he said, "and we believe they have no right to take more land than they need."

The FAA has so far rejected these options, but if the town pushed, he said, the agency could be made to change its mind.

As a pilot, Korean War veteran and former aircraft engineer, he noted, he was familiar with the culture of the FAA.

"You go up the line until you get to someone who has had the experience and has made the compromises — and who can say 'yes.'"

The Valentine family has cooperated regarding the airport for 50 years, he said, "but this road business is the straw that broke the camel's back. We've taken a stand and we hope the town will support us."

Different world views

Underlying the conflict, Dresser said Friday, may be different perspectives on what is best for Bethel, especially regarding growth.

Earlier that day, he said, he had had a pleasant, if unfruitful, visit with the Valentines, who were forthright in their opinion that Bethel was better off with less rather than more growth.

"They're not much interested in seeing Bethel grow," Dresser said. "It's (Richard's) view that folks ought to let young people leave town and go somewhere else, get a job, get dirty, get some money, come back to find a small, quiet town to retire to which is peaceful. I'm sure he isn't the only one who holds that view."

Valentine later said Dresser's description was basically accurate (although he disagreed somewhat with the choice of words).

A childhood in Pittsburgh and a career in Hartford, he said, had deepened his appreciation for the character of Bethel.

"We don't want to see the town of Bethel turned into a Pittsburgh, or into a North Conway," he said, "and that's slowly happening."

Nonetheless, "we're not trying to hold up the airport," he said, only to protect the land and be treated fairly.

On the matter of growth, Dresser took a different view.

"Our job as adults in the community," he said, "is to leave the town better on an infrastructure basis than we found it — in hopes that the kids behind us will have a good, solid platform on which to build their economic and social and spiritual lives."

He summed up the situation as "just an awful shame. Usually these political issues come down to differences of world view, plain and simple. And their world view is every bit as healthy and as valid as my world view."

On Nov. 7 Bethel voters will make their own views known.

AND THE WINNER IS ... Fumi Head, who had the lucky ticket in Saturday's Bethel Library Association's quilt raffle. Here Lorrie Hoeh draws the winning ticket as Becky Kendall eagerly looks on. Newry votes funds at special meeting

NEWRY—Voters at a special Town Meeting Monday authorized the purchase of a fire truck and transferred other funds to the Fire Department for firefighter training. The pumper/tanker truck will be purchased for $231,350. Training will be funded by $4,800 originally approved for the Bethel/Newry transit system. The system was voted in by Newry residents earlier this year, but turned down by Bethel voters. In other business at Monday's special meeting, voters approved revisions to the Unified Development Review Ordinance, the shoreland zoning ordinance and the shoreland zoning map. The two dozen people in attendance passed over another article that had proposed accepting a donation of 25 acres of land along the Sunday River from Tim Cohee. Cohee had originally offered to donate the landlocked parcel to the town. He was then contacted by Bill Herlihy, who lives across the river from the land. Herlihy asked the parcel be donated to him instead, and Cohee agreed, according to town officials.

Tourism office hard to find, says MTA

BETHEL—The Maine Tourism Association office, located at the Evans Notch Ranger Station on Route 2, is losing visitors as a result of Bethel's ban on MDOT directional signs, an official said Tuesday. Vaughn Stinson of MTA was one of about a dozen businesspeople attending a public hearing regarding possible changes to the town's sign ordinance. Several said the restrictiveness of the regulations prevents them from having adequate signage to direct people to their business. The blue MDOT signs have been replaced by a system of kiosks and international signs. Stinson said the number of visitors at the office has declined from 17,000 two years ago to an expected 11,000 this year. People who have come to the MTA office, he said, often say they had trouble finding it. The MTA took down its original directional sign to comply with the Bethel ordinance, which went into effect three years ago. A committee is currently studying the sign ordinance and plans to have a proposed revised version for next spring.

CME members will present information about the progress of the planning and application process. Members of the Maine Department of Transportation staff will also be available to hear comments about the scenic byway program.

GMA coming to Sunday River again

NEWRY—Good Morning America will visit Sunday River Ski Resort for the second time this year to feature a look at the new sport of mountainboarding. The live broadcast will take place on Wednesday, Oct. 4. The show also visited Sunday River during the summer for the North American Wife-Carrying Contest.

Ski sale scheduled

BETHEL—The 20th annual Bethel Outing Club Ski Sale will take place at the Gould Academy Field House, Friday, Oct. 27 from 6:30 to 9 p.m., and Saturday, Oct. 28, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Individuals may bring equipment to sell, subject to a 15 percent consignment fee, on Oct. 27 after 3 p.m. Ski shops interested in bringing merchandise to the sale who have not already reserved space should contact Ann Speth at 824-2586. Proceeds of the sale support local youth cross-country skiing programs.

Waterslides on view soon

NEWRY—The BIG Adventure Center has purchased waterslides currently located at Sunday River Ski Resort. Construction for the new site is expected to begin immediately. The slides will be installed adjacent to the center's new miniature golf course and in front of the center's main building. Completion of the project is scheduled for this fall so winter visitors can see the slides as they drive by on Route 2.

MCS picked for national program

BRYANT POND—The Maine Conservation School has been selected as the Eastern United States site for the American Wilderness Leadership School. MCS was selected in a national competition. AWLS is a week-long program for educators and resource personnel seeking challenging educational experiences in the fields of wildlife ecology, management and conservation, together with firearms safety, wilderness survival, fly fishing and tying, interpretive techniques and outdoor ethics. The school may offer the program as early as the summer of 2001.

MVHS to change graduation?

RUMFORD—The SAD43 Board of Directors will consider whether to change graduation for Mountain Valley High School from Sundays to Saturdays. At a recent board meeting, several people said it would be advantageous to make the change because it would provide more time for families to be together. The issue will be discussed formally at the next board meeting.

Driver in King accident found dead

FRYEBURG—Bryan Smith, the man whose van struck Maine author Stephen King last year, was found dead at his home Friday. Smith's brother asked the Oxford County Sheriff's Department to check on him after relatives had not heard from him in three days. Officers were able to see him lying in bed through a window, but he did not respond. Officials were awaiting the results of an autopsy. Smith reportedly had been on medication for a disability, but his brother said he was not aware of any life-threatening disabilities.

Hazardous waste day Saturday

GREENWOOD—The first Greenwood Hazardous Waste Day will take place Saturday from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the fire station on Howe Hill Road. Marie Bartlett, manager of the Greenwood-Woodstock Solid Waste, said some acceptable items are fertilizer, insecticides, oil-based paint, old oven cleaner and anything poisonous. Materials must be in containers. For more information call the Town Office at 875-2773 or the transfer station at 875-3770.

Candidate breakfast planned

NEWRY—The Western Maine Legislative Caucus will sponsor three "candidate forums" in response to input from constituents and legislators across the region. The caucus will hold three breakfasts before the election, including one on Oct. 11 at 7:30 a.m. at the Summit Hotel in Newry. The caucus will distribute its third copy of western Maine candidates' responses to a comprehensive questionnaire focused on regional and state issues at each event. The breakfasts are open to the public. For more information call 778-7274.

River blessing rescheduled

RUMFORD POINT—A "Blessing of the River," postponed last weekend because of rain, will take place Oct. 1 at 2:15 p.m. at the Rumford Point Congregational Church, rain or shine. The program will emphasize the historic role of the Androscoggin River in the Rumford area. Those wishing to come by canoe may put in at the boat landing in Hanover. Stony Brook Campground will also provide canoes at the landing for people who wish to ride (be there at 1 p.m.). At the close of the program at the church, the congregation will proceed to the bridge for the blessing and will strew flowers and corn on the river.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Fleeing driver caught later

At 11:04 p.m. on Sept. 22 police observed a vehicle traveling north on Route 26 without a license plate displayed. The officer turned on the cruiser lights, and the vehicle turned into a parking lot. The driver and two occupants then left the vehicle and fled on foot. As the officer left the cruiser to give chase, he observed the subject's vehicle traveling toward him in reverse. It then struck the front of the cruiser and stopped.

At 11:04 p.m. police questioned a subject who was an occupant in a vehicle in which the operator fled the scene of a traffic stop. During questioning the subject denied any knowledge of the identity of the driver or two other occupants who fled. Further investigation determined the identities of the other subjects. Marie D. Anderson, 42, of Gilead was charged with hindering apprehension. (See Sept. 23.)

Monday, Sept. 18

At 4:12 p.m. police stopped a subject for speeding on Route 26. A license check showed it was under suspension. Shannon M. Gannon, 30, was charged with operating after suspension.

Friday, Sept. 22

At 10:45 p.m. on Sept. 22 police observed a subject sitting in his vehicle on Railroad Street. The subject, out on bail, was subject to search and test, no use or possession of alcohol or drugs. The subject smelled of an intoxicating liquor and admitted to drinking. Beer was also found in the back seat. Jeffrey A. Alanskas of Stoneham was arrested and taken to the Oxford County Jail.

Saturday, Sept. 23

At 8:50 a.m. police made contact with a subject regarding an incident that occurred the previous evening. Stephen Taylor was issued summonses for operating an unregistered motor vehicle, failure to submit to arrest or detention and driving to endanger.

Sunday, Sept. 24

At 6:20 p.m. police observed a vehicle operating left of the center line on Main Street. The vehicle did the same thing on Railroad Street. The officer stopped it. A license check showed a suspended status. Robert M. Handwerker, 53, of Providence, R.I. was arrested and taken to the Oxford County Jail.

At 11 p.m. police observed a vehicle traveling south on Main Street above the posted speed limit. The officer stopped the vehicle. The officer smelled the odor of marijuana. The subject admitted he had smoked recently, and surrendered a marijuana pipe. The officer then said he would search the vehicle. The subject said there was marijuana in the trunk. The subject was then given field sobriety tests, and he did not pass them. Jason York, 19, was arrested for OUI and trafficking in schedule Z drugs. He was also summoned for possession of drug paraphernalia, illegal transportation of drugs by a minor and imprudent speed.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log. It lists all cases of adults being summoned or arrested, but does not include all reports of other police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies.

Channel IV

West Paris, and Newry.

There will probably be some re-configuration of the towns involved as the current cable contracts are renegotiated. Andover may become part of the Channel IV family, and West Paris may join the South Paris station, so that community broadcasts more accurately reflect the school communities.

Channel IV reflects the local area in a home-grown way. Programming includes Nan Timberlake reading the Bethel Citizen, selectmen's meetings and town meetings, sporting events at Telstar produced by Wayne Howe and Ray Seames, local interest shows such as Linwood Hansen's Bryant Pond Hour — the longest running Channel IV show — and community events like the West Paris Old Home Days show produced by Joe Cole.

Recently, the station has also been experimenting with using the studio as a call-in forum for public issues, such as the transit system plan and the Bethel Sign Ordinance.

Timberlake has been working on a long-term project about Sunday River Ski Resort. "On the skiway project," she said, "almost all of the camera work has been my own, but Andrew has spent many hours with me at the controls, struggling to get me to dare with things like voice-overs. I am very much indebted to him for that effort."

"He doesn't very often have the time to come and man the camera during 'Citizen' readings, but tries to get in and position things, get a tape ready, things like that. I may find post-its scattered along the path I should follow, sometimes with a smiley face, sometimes just marked 'Nan'."

Another big part of Channel IV's mission is the Community Bulletin Board, programmed by Lainey Cross. The Bulletin Board lists activities happening throughout the Channel IV region, and welcomes listings and ideas. New this year is the ability to run photographs with the Bulletin Board. For a small fee, announcements and achievements

Cross spends many hours a week putting the Bulletin Board on the air, and she works closely with Wheeler. "Ever since he came on board," she said, "things have been happening. He cleaned up and organized the studio, catalogued the tapes, and set up the VCR's and editing equipment. He tutors volunteers, and films shows out in the field. He's an all-around guy, he can do it all since that's his background."

USM Media Studies student

Wheeler acquired his video background at the University of Southern Maine Media Studies Program. He expects to broadcast his senior project in October. The project is a short video called "The Good Life," starring Jewel Clark, Harry Faulkner, Casey Parker, and Police Chief Darren Tripp. It is the first in a series of short films Wheeler plans to produce and include in the Channel IV tape library.

Wheeler hopes to hold an Adult

Ed class, Video Basics, on Tuesday nights beginning Oct. 3. "Right now, we don't have enough people enrolled to run the class," he said. When there is enough interest, Video Basics will help folks interested in video produce a quality tape, he said, and people interested in contributing to Channel IV programming can learn the necessary skills, and then use the studio's equipment, including video cameras, for production.

"We are looking for ideas and for people to help do the taping," Wheeler said. "We would like to know about community events, concerts, and performances to include in our programming."

Visitors are welcome to stop by and visit the studio, located at Telstar High School, on Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m.

To find out more about Channel IV, to discuss a potential program with the station, or to enroll in the Basic Video class, contact the Adult Ed office at 824-2780.

Smoking ban

and the ceiling.

Her customer base has also been unaffected, she said, with the exception of one smoker who stayed away for a while, but now comes in occasionally.

It's a similar situation at Sunday River Ski Resort, which has a total of 14 on-mountain eating establishments. Food and beverage manager Jim Largess oversees eight of them.

"It makes the inside of the restaurant that much more comfortable. There are no adverse effects at all," he said.

Bar customers who do not smoke are happier, said Largess. "They say, 'I don't have to go home with my eyes bleeding,'" he said.

Decks adjacent to most of the restaurants provide space for smokers to go outside, said Largess.

Mo Ginter, a waitress and bartender who works at the Sunday River Brewing Co., also welcomed the law. "At the end of a long weekend I don't feel like I've smoked five cartons of cigarettes," she said.

Ginter said she believes the number of non-smoking customers has increased in the past year. Some tables also "turn over" more quickly, she said, because customers who formerly stayed on after eating to smoke now simply leave, freeing up the table sooner.

The perspective of the local restaurateurs seem to reflect opinions from across Maine.

Karen Beal, a Jonesport waitress who is a smoker, said business has increased at her restaurant since the law took effect. "It's kind of a nuisance going outside to smoke, but overall, it's good," she said.

State revenue figures show business in restaurants increased by 7 percent during the first three quarters the law was on the books, according to the Maine Bureau of Health. Three surveys since last year show rising public support for the law. Eighty-five percent of people polled earlier this month said they are going to restaurants at least as often as before the law.

The other side

Despite the positive reviews from many restaurants, not everyone is convinced the law is a good one. Dick Grotton, executive vice president of the Maine Restaurant Association, said while restaurant revenues show an increase, they would have been higher if the ban had not taken effect.

The association tried in vain to persuade the state Legislature not to enact the ban.

"In essence, smokers have moved to venues that still allow smoking," said Grotton. "The properties that had a fairly significant bar business have lost it."

Maine's law does not outlaw smoking in clubs or taverns. Three Maine restaurants were fined after trying to get around the law by claiming to be smoking clubs.

Harry Faulkner, owner of the Backstage Restaurant in Bethel, said he has gained business from smokers since the ban. The Backstage has a tavern license.

People come in, he said, and tell him, "It's great, I can have a cigarette here," said Faulkner.

But despite the benefit to his business, Faulkner opposes the ban. "It's unreasonable," he said. "I don't think it's fair."

He said the law puts restaurants in the difficult position of deciding whether to apply for a tavern license, which is considerably more expensive than a restaurant license, he said.

"It's making more money for the state," he said.

Olympics

Considered to be one of the top Nordic skiers in the United States, he finished in the top five in no less than 10 major races last winter, including Continental Cup (NorAm) and U.S. National events. He also traveled to Italy and Austria, where he posted impressive results — including an eighth-place finish and three others in the top 20 — in several Europa Cup races, proving he can hold his own against international competition.

Chamberlain attributes his achievement in skiing to the support of his family and friends, and to the coaching he has received throughout the years of his development in the sport. Judy and Tom Upham, Mt. Blue High School Nordic coach Jeff Meserve, and Becky Flynn Woods, his coach at Bates College, all helped to shape him as an athlete.

Chamberlain admits that a single-minded focus on racing and training is another essential factor in his success. "Training is pretty much a lifestyle for me," he says.

For the past three years, Chamberlain has been employed at Gould Academy, first as a coach, dormitory resident, and teaching intern in mathematics, and now as assistant athletic director, a part-time position that allows him the flexibility to train and race throughout the fall and winter.

His on-snow training will begin this year in just a few weeks, when he travels to Alaska in late October with the U.S. Ski Team and the Fischer/Salomon/Subaru team. At the end of November, his racing season kicks off with the Continental Cup races in Silver Star, British Columbia.

Chamberlain will race nearly every weekend throughout December and January, and he hopes his early season results will send him to the World Championships in Lahti, Finland in February.

His connection to Gould Academy also allows him to work closely with Dick Taylor, the school's Nordic coach, who captained the U.S. Cross-Country Ski Team at the 1964 Olympics in Innsbruck, Austria, and later served as a coach for the U.S. National Team.

Taylor helped Chamberlain to design an individualized training plan intended to gradually bring his already formidable strength and speed to new levels and allow him to reach his peak performance in time for the 2002 Winter Games.

Seeking local support

Chamberlain is seeking support from area businesses, organizations, and individuals interested in helping to sponsor his efforts.

He hopes to procure sufficient funding to cover his travel and living expenses, allowing him to devote the necessary focus to training and racing.

He recently received the donation of a "leadership gift" from the Bethel Outing Club, which, according to Outing Club president Mike Cooper, "is a logical extension of the Outing Club's long history of sponsoring youth skiing in the Bethel area."

"Other beneficiaries over the last 20 years have been the Crescent Park School cross-country ski program and the Telstar, Gould, and Oxford Hills high school teams."

Gould Academy, in conjunction with the Bethel Outing Club, will host a reception on Sunday evening, Oct. 1 in Gould's Orway Hall to introduce Chamberlain to the community and promote interest in and support for his efforts.

The public is invited to the reception, which will give those in attendance an opportunity to meet and talk with Chamberlain to learn more about Nordic racing, his training regimen and philosophy, and his goals.

For more information about the reception, please contact Kirk Siegel, Bethel Outing Club secretary, at 824-0717.

Bethel

by Virginia Keniston
Maggie Davis of Atlanta, Ga., is spending some time with her grandmother, Margaret "Amy" Davis. Priscilla Carver Wiley of Connecticut was a guest over the weekend.

Mallory Blake celebrated her 22nd birthday on Sept. 8 with a family gathering at the Blake Farm. The Gould Academy Class of 1940 held their 60th reunion at the Town and Country in Shelburne, N.H., on Friday, Sept. 22, with the classes of '39 and '41 included. Members of the Class of 1940 present were Catherine McMillin, Earle and Edwina Mann Palmer, Virginia Davis Keniston, Jean Cameron Howard, Earle Paine and Nat Bartholomaei. All agreed that our years at Gould were very meaningful in shaping our lives.

Ed Dorion G.A. '46 and Mary Swasey Nutter G.A. '45 of Portland spent the weekend in Bethel and attended the Gould alumni activities over the weekend and also visited with Ed's sister, Mary and Bud Paine.

Elise and Sarah Keniston of Turner spent the weekend with their grandparents, Bob and Ginny Keniston.

Grandparents' Day was held at Crescent Park School on Sept. 22. Grades four and five have four soccer teams. Two teams will be traveling teams playing against other schools, while the other two teams will be scrimmage and continue to work on their skills and individual play with Coach Kenney.

The music program at Crescent Park School is growing. Randy Crockett already has 40 young musicians working with musical instruments this year.

Cross Country Quilters have been meeting in the Bethel Historical Society's Robinson House during the summer on Tuesday mornings from 9 to 11. Last week the group tied a "Boston Common Quilt" in the Moses Mason barn. This week Mabel Kennett taught a lesson on the "Texas Star." The quilt quilt donated to the Bethel Library by the quilters was drawn on Saturday and the winner was Fumi Head.

Bob and Ginny Keniston spent a couple days and nights at Bosebuck Camps on Aziscoos Lake this week.

Members of the Gould Academy Class of '45 and spouses enjoyed a delicious dinner and evening of reminiscing at the Bethel Inn last Friday evening. Attending were Pat and Bill Moore of Stowe, Vt., who organized the occasion; Ed Dorion and Mary Nutter of Portland; Bill and Helen Swasey of Wolfeboro, N.H.; Mary Lou and Hi Berry of Newry; Adaline Clough of West Bethel; Phyllis and Bill Bancroft of Albany; Dottie and Charles Bargar of Uhrichsville, Ohio; Bob and Polly Davis of Bethel; Kermit and Jane Allen of Blue Hill; Priscilla Wiley of Woodbury, Conn.; Dick and Mary Woodcock of Woodstock, Conn.; Pamela Atkins and Bob Champney of Glen Ridge, N.J.; Claire Lapham Smith of Wallingford, Conn., joined the group on Saturday for the convocation, annual luncheon at noon and banquet in the evening. Hi and Mary Lou Berry invited all classmates and spouses to their summer home, Lone Pine in Newry, after the banquet.

Lona and Carl Meaux of Duluth, Ga., are visiting this week with her father, Earlon and Mary Keniston.

Luella Sciaraffa has as guests three cousins from Stratford, Conn. Among the activities they have enjoyed while in Bethel was a get-together, hosted by their aunt, for family and friends from Gorham, N.H., Rumford and Bethel.

Bethel House

by Ruth Cummings

Mildred Newell is no longer at the Bethel House. She went in June to a nursing home in Lewiston, and Rebecca told me she would never be able to come back here. Rebecca gave me her new address yesterday, and it is: Mrs. Mildred Newell, Marguerite Dijouville Pavilion, Room 340, Lewiston, ME 04240. Mildred would enjoy cards and letters and visits.

Joyce Patenaude took me for my appointment with Dr. Ross in Rumford on Wednesday. I had a dental checkup, a filling and two X-rays and now I am all set until March. I received 1.2 inches of rain on Sept. 15, Sonny Cummings reported 1.5 inches and Ronnie reported receiving .9 inch.

Sonny and Nancy Cummings were in Gorham recently, and it rained while they were there, so they got to see a beautiful rainbow on their way home.

Ruth Sorofman has returned to her home in Rochelle, Ga., after spending six weeks with Sonny and Nancy Cummings. She will be home a short time and then go to Iowa to visit one of her sons.

Drew and Judy Webster spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Prentiss in Bridgton recently, and Judy's sister, June, from Pennsylvania was also visiting there, as well as June's daughter.

Chris from Topsham and working for PMV Coastal was at the Bethel House in Thursday on maintenance. He was here at 8:30 a.m. and spent the day. He got a lot done, but there sure is a lot more to be done. He tried to put in a new intercom phone for me, but the one they had given him to install had less wires than the one in there and it would not work.

Lottie Knowles of Dixfield, Barbara Casey of Mexico and Florence Morgan of Sudbury Village have all visited their sister, Eva, here at the Bethel House recently.

Friend Day was observed Sept. 17 at the Bethel Alliance Church.

There was a good attendance. Pastor Rick's message was "The Search for Significance." Andrea Bennett, JoAnn Royer, Andy Bean and Pastor Rick were all down front to lead with the choruses. Pastor Rick played his guitar, Judy Webster played the piano and Peggy Mowery the flute for hymns as well as choruses. A lady had two special numbers, one was "How Great Thou Art," but I do not remember the other nor do I know the lady's name. A social hour was held after the morning service with coffee, punch and goodies. Thanks, Norm, for getting things for me.

At 5 p.m. the African-American group were on the common to sing. Olga Morgan and Ginny Walker attended. I believe they had a very nice crowd.

A Sunday School teacher asked her students why they should be quiet in church. One little boy replied, "Because people are sleeping."

Eva Lane's granddaughter and great-grandson visited her recently at the Bethel House.

Beatrice Smith took Rebecca Ricker to the free place in Rumford where Bea works. Rebecca helped Bea with some things there and then Bea treated her to lunch at the Chuck Wagon.

East Bethel

by Nancy Mercer

Roger and Louise Twitchell, Polly Smith and Ruth Bethel attended the Bethel Senior Citizens Club meeting and dinner at North Waterford on Sept. 13.

Polly Smith went to the wedding of Amos Kimball and Coral Smith at the Locke Mills Church and the wedding reception afterward at the American Legion Hall on Sept. 23. There were about 250 people who attended. The rehearsal supper was at Penny Savage's in Bryant Pond on Sept. 22, with 35 people in the wedding party present.

Dana and Millie Jackson and Marion Kimball were in North Conway, N.H., on Sept. 23.

Arlene Harrington visited her brother, Robert, and his wife, Barbara, in York Beach from Sept. 21 to 23.

Judy Smith of Bucksport visited Arlene Harrington on Sept. 23 and 24. Judy attended her 40th class reunion at Gould Academy. Paul and Charlotte Kimball had their granddaughter, Robin Tuominen of Norway, for the day on Sept. 22.

Paul and Charlotte Kimball had supper with Dale and Nancy Kimball on Sept. 23.

Mike and Nancy Antonelli of Hudson, N.Y., visited Andre and Flossie Bernier from Sept. 16 to 23.

The leaves have started to turn color and there is a hint of fall in the air now.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson

Hi readers. Vicki Pike was around town recently selling her Avon products. Her telephone number is 583-2563, if you would like to place an order with her. She has lots of nice and interesting items in her book and basket. These make nice Christmas or birthday gifts.

Saturday, Sept. 16, Helen Roback arrived here from Pennsylvania in her R.V. to visit her relatives, Frances Grant, Lois Niemi and myself. We hadn't seen her for over 50 years. It was a nice visit, and Albert treated us all to supper at the A.J.'s Everything Restaurant here in Stoneham. She left on Sunday after church and dinner, to be on her way to an Elderhostel program she had signed up for near Center Harbor, N.H. It's nice to keep in touch with relatives. All the older ones who used to visit us here have passed on, and it's good that the younger ones do keep in touch.

The leaves are getting colored and falling off already. Oh well, today is the first day of autumn and the air is getting a bit nippy now.

Laurence and Mildred Dammun of Damariscotta have been here at their home doing touch-up repairs and getting ready for winter.

At last report, Milton Barker is getting along okay after being in the hospital. Also, Carlton Barker is at home now and doing okay after his hospitalization.

Dean Saunders worked for Albert Nelson Sr. a few days recently.

Oh, I've got a correction to last week's news — it was Brenda Files and Shirley and Earl Files that went to visit Paul Files. It was my goof, but nobody is perfect, are they?

Albert Jr. and Carole Nelson and Albert and I went to Farmington Fair this past week. We visited Eric Nelson at the Wiles Funeral Home at Jay, where he lives and works.

It's a beautiful place out in the countryside, and we had a nice day. While at the fair, we saw and chatted with Jane and Eddie Averill and Pauline Kirshner, whom we hadn't seen for quite a while.

I visited my cousin, Wilma Taylor, one day recently at the Norway Convalescent Home. She always seems so cheerful. It's a pleasure to visit with her.

The Stoneham Knight Riders Snowmobile Club held their annual landowners steak and chicken barbecue on Saturday this year instead of Sunday, and it was good as usual. They had a good day for it, and I think about 30 people were and I think about 30 people were there.

I just read, in today's paper, 50 ways to lose your clutter. That is going to be tacked up on the wall here with a red outline. I should put flashing lights on it. Do you suppose it would do any good?

The first week in October is Fryeburg Fair. There will be a steady stream of cars by the house all day. I'm glad that this cat doesn't go out. I always worried about the other one we had going across the road, but she was smart and street wise and actually looked both ways before she ran across and then picked a slow time.

Well, not too much news this week. We did discover that Mr. and Mrs. Sausage was a good place at the fair, as well as the Harmon's.

Matthew Nelson has gotten his driver's license, so you will probably see him out driving around now.

Jean Littlefield got good news recently. She won't have to have a hip operation, as she got treatment for it and it helped her.

The Historical Society met on Monday night for a potluck supper and meeting.

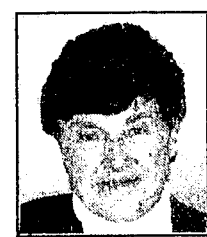

Supper was in charge of Milt and Eleanor Inman. Several donations were made for the museum. Supper plans were finalized. The next meeting will be on Oct. 16 preceded by a potluck supper, with Cynthia and Sayward Lamb in charge.

There was no news last week because Vern and I were in Washington, D.C., for his 55th reunion with the 87th Infantry Division. While there we went on a tour of "Washington After Dark" and saw many memorials and went to all branches of the service. The next day we took a tour of Arlington Cemetery to the Tomb of the Unknowns where the 87th Division placed a wreath, accompanied by honor guards at the tomb. It was very impressive and never will be forgotten. There was only one other member of Vern's company attending that was with him when they first entered combat. Many remembrances of combat times and many humorous incidences were enjoyed by members of the E Company. We plan to meet again next year. We were lucky to have our daughter, Ginny, and our son-in-law, Bill to accompany us on my trip down memory lane. May they hold the banner high. Thank you, kids.

The Universalist Church Board of Management met on Wednesday with Vince and Beverly Stevens. Ballroom dancing lessons will begin on Oct. 13 at the Agnes Gray School gym from 7 to 8 p.m. Singles and couples are invited. There will be six lessons; the first one is free. The next board meeting will be on Oct. 19 at Nancy Willard's home.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte

Summer left us last week. It just eased its way out not leaving a great impression, but it was pleasant while it lasted.

A Memorial Service was held in the Upton Union Church on Saturday for Christine Largesse Morton. The church was filled to capacity with relatives, friends and co-workers. A fellowship lunch was held in the Ladies Aid building. A delicious lunch was served compliments of The Balsams Hotel, friends and neighbors. We offer our deepest sympathy to the Largesse and Morton families.

There will be an Estate Yard Sale held at the Largesse home on Route 26, Saturday, Sept. 30, and Sunday, Oct. 1, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The sale will benefit the trust fund set up for Noah and Garrett Morton, Christine's sons.

Buster and Ginny Williamson have brought me a variety of goodies all summer long. Sunday, I was presented with a huge, white puffball mushroom. Ginny was walking up behind her camp when she spied the object. She thought it was her great-grandson, Cameron's soccer ball. She picked it up, and much to post offices. Sympathy is extended to her family.

A rumor has been circulating the area. Supposedly the promise that the new Hanover post office would be completed this fall may not be fulfilled. Site preparation began earlier this summer, but the area has been vacated for some time. The post office project has been planned for several years and the completion date has been advanced a number of times. One old timer said he would believe it when he saw it. In the meantime, the mail continues to be delivered to the small office located inside Gordie Howe's under the direction of Postmaster Elaine Bonica.

On Labor Day weekend, Maurice and Cecile Lescault had guests from Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Portland. Among them were Cecile's sister, Evelyn, from Rhode Island and her brother, Emile, and his wife, Louise, from Massachusetts. Also visiting was their son, Martin, from Portland and his dog, "Doogie." They all came to Annie Crockett's for a visit and met her for the first time. Everyone enjoyed that visit very much.

It is time to share a lesson about bumblebees. I had believed that they always nested in the ground. But recently going near an old birdhouse hanging from a nearby tree, there was a zip and a hum and there appeared a bumblebee from that house. In my science book, I read that these bees' queens fly low over fields in search for deserted field mouse nests or other hollowed out places in the ground that can be made over into a bumblebee's nest. She evidently dislikes doing any extra work, so she discovered the bird's nest inside the house.

Once a nest is chosen, the queen brings soft, dead grass for the nursery carpet. This done she searches for pollen and nectar. Then she pushes her long sucking tube down into wild flowers and fills her honey sac with nectar. She also brushes the flowers' dust that gets on her body into the pollen basket on her hind legs. She goes back and mixes pollen with honey until she makes a ball of the beebread. Next she lays tiny eggs on the beebread and covers them with a thin sheet of wax. She then sits on them, as a mother hen does, for four days and nights to keep them warm. They are then born right on top of their dinners. All they have to do is to eat the beebread. Their life has begun.

It is the fair season again, so some attended that.

I was glad to have a visit from Eleanor and her two small granddaughters.

Several of the Holt family gathered at Ann's for a delicious dinner to celebrate the birthday of Leonas. It was a fun time for all. Thanks to Ann.

West Paris

West Paris Grange met at their hall on the evening of Sept. 22 for Education Night. The program for the evening centered around an old-fashioned, one-room schoolhouse, with Mrs. Elizabeth Bragg as teacher and Pat Breame, Anna Swan and Bertha Benoit as the students. The program opened with the song, "School Days"; a poem, "September Days" was read by Bertha Benoit; "Take Me Out to the Ballgame"; stories about the old one-room schools by Edna Lord, Earl Andrews and others; mystery march; poem, "Teacher's Prayer" by Elizabeth Bragg; closed with the song, "Seeing Your Way Home."

The month of October will be a busy one for West Paris Grange: Oct. 5, Hobby Night, October Craft Fair at the Grange Hall from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Oct. 14, Public Harvest Supper from 5 to 6:30 p.m. (adults $5; children $2.50) at the hall; Oct. 19, Agriculture Night program; Oct. 21, Rabies Clinic from 9 to 11 a.m.; Oct. 24, Flu Shots Clinic from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.; and last but not least, the Free Hearing Clinic on Oct. 28 from 10 to 12 a.m.

Hope these clinics will help you all to meet your fall needs. See you all next week.

Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center

Members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center are reminded that a lecture will be held on Thursday, Oct. 5, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the Dr. Moses Mason House Exhibit Hall. Featured speaker will be Linda Farr Macgregor of Rumford, who has led many of the activities associated with the bicentenary of this important Oxford County town, that has included the dedication of the Edmund S. Muskie Memorial, an exhibit and a forthcoming book. Her topic will be "Where's Rumford? Two Hundred Years of Rumford History." The lecture is free and open to anyone interested.

Cider and applesauce making from fruit grown on the grounds of the Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center were among the attractions at the third annual Apple and Pumpkin Festival held on Sept. 23 in connection with Bethel's Harvest Fest. Pumpkin decorating and the sale of pumpkin whoopie pies made by society trustee Lois Kilroy were also featured during the afternoon. Winners of the pumpkin decorating contest for children were Caili Inman, David Adley, Elizabeth Adley, and Katie Collette.

The Robinson House and Dr. Moses Mason House were open for tours. Thanks go to tour guides Persis Post and Amy Davis, Dean Walker for operating the cider press, Susan Herlihy for applesauce making, Walter Hatch for overseeing the pumpkin decorating and apple toss, Lois Kilroy for making whoopie pies, and to Lorrie Hoch for managing the sales table.

During Sept. 23-25, the society hosted two surveyors representing the American Association of Museums, who were here to review the organization's relationship to its audience under a MAP (Museum Assessment Program) III grant. Vivian F. Zoe, executive director of the Noah Webster House and Museum of West Hartford History in West Hartford, Conn., was the lead surveyor. She was accompanied by Farar Elliott, executive director of the Ethan Allen Homestead Trust in Burlington, Vt. Both have extensive experience in museums, having worked at a number of locations in the Northeast.

On Saturday, the surveyors were treated to the bean supper served on the common as part of Harvest Fest. This provided an opportunity to review the agenda for the visit and the goals as outlined in the pre-visit agreement form. After this, the group adjourned to their accommodations at the Pleasant River Motel in West Bethel.

The next morning, breakfast was at Executive Director Stan Howe's house, where an overview discussion of the society and MAP III ensued. This was followed by a tour of facilities and an area tour that included Artist's Bridge in Newry. A luncheon at the Dr. Moses Mason House exhibit hall was followed by the plenary session with trustees, volunteers and the MAP III Steering Committee. More tours of the facilities and town continued after the session. Dinner in the evening was at the Victoria, which was followed by exit interviews.

From the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

Welcome to our newest members: Looking Glass Pictures, Grethwood, Andrew Wheeler, owner and Ski Tracks, Inc., Robert Martin, owner, Bethel. Andy does video production and is available to tape special events or meetings of all types and Robert sells land and log homes and has a rental property.

Many thanks to Sunday River Brewing Co. for hosting our monthly Community Networking Breakfast. It was terrific to have such a great turnout to listen to our speaker from the Maine Department of Transportation and to see their new video called "Explore Maine: A Strategic Passenger Transportation Plan." This video showed us how our proposed transit system is part of a much larger plan.

All are invited to put the October Community Networking Breakfast on your calendars. It is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 11, at the Grand Summit Hotel at Sunday River Ski Resort. This is going to be a special opportunity to listen to the candidates running for the Maine State Legislature in the November election. All candidates from Western Maine have been invited to attend. There will be a free continental breakfast offered, sponsored by the Western Mountains Alliance. However, you must RSVP to the chamber office by Friday, Oct. 6, to reserve a place, as space is limited.

Notes from SAD44 Adult Ed

The fall term of Adult Education is off to a busy start on all fronts, with excellent enrollments in the University of Maine ITV classes, at the Adult Learning Center and in the many courses advertised in the fall brochure.

A new GED Preparation class in Andover, added after the brochure went to press, has attracted a strong enrollment and welcomes new students on Wednesday nights from 6-8 at the Andover school.

Upcoming classes sponsored by MSAD 44 Adult Education include a slide lecture on A Bike Tour of the Canadian Maritimes on Thursday, Oct. 5 from 7 to 9 p.m., a course in Gems and Minerals of Oxford County starting on Thursday, Oct. 5 at 7 p.m., and a course in Basic Knitting which will meet in the afternoon from 1 to 3 p.m. starting Oct. 5.

Supply lists for the October quilting classes are available in the Adult Education office. The Monday morning class featuring Drunkard's Path will begin on Oct. 16, the Paperpiecing seminars are set for Oct. 24, and the class on Assembling and Finishing Quilts will begin on Oct. 25.

The Quickbooks class was over-subscribed and a second section has been added to start Nov. 1. A second Parent Support Group is planned during morning hours with Kathy Goldberg.

Please contact the office if you are interested in either class.

For information on these or any other classes sponsored by Adult Education, call 824-2780.

Gould senior Bob Bruce took first place overall in the axe throwing event, and teammate Seth Hawkins took third. Senior Ben Phillips took fifth place in the single bow saw, and Gould took second place in the team bow saw event. Gould's Team A, consisting of Bruce, Phillips, Jack Henderson-Adams, Tristan Fischer, Sean Duncan, and Peter Waitkun, finished the day in fourth place overall. LAWRENCE MASON

Lawrence Mason, 88, of Victorian Villa, Canton, died late Friday afternoon, Sept. 22, 2000.

Mr. Mason was born in Locke Mills on Oct. 23, 1911, son of the late Ernest and Rose (Cole) Mason, and attended Locke Mills schools.

A mill worker by vocation, he had resided in Locke Mills, Augusta, and for the past 17 years was a resident of Canton.

Survivors include a brother, Irvin Mason of Machias, and several nieces and nephews. He was predeceased by a sister, Dora Ford Dingley, last June.

Graveside funeral services were held at the South Bethel Cemetery, Route 26, South Bethel, on Wednesday, Sept. 27.

Hospital, Boston, nursing program, where she received her R.N. At the age of 55 she received her B.A. degree from the University of New Hampshire, in Life Studies.

A registered nurse, by profession, she was employed by Gould Academy, as the school nurse, for several years.

A veteran of World War II, in June of 1944, she entered the U.S. Navy WAVES, as an Ensign, and was assigned to the Saint Albans U.S. Navy Hospital, Long Island, N.Y. While there she met and cared for her future husband, Norman H. Dock. They were married in January of 1945. They moved to Woodstock, N.Y., for several years, then established their home in Bethel over a half-century ago.

For a number of years, Mrs. Dock served as the director of the Oxford County Head Start Program.

Always active in the Town of Bethel, she had served on many boards and committees, including the Bethel Planning Board, the Bethel Historical Society, the SAD44 Board of Directors, at the inception of Telstar Regional High School, and the Middle Intervale Meeting House.

Mrs. Dock had a passion for Morgan horses, as well as other livestock, which was developed while living at "Sunset Farm." She wrote and published a children's book, "Little Hawk," which chronicled the life of a Morgan stallion that moved from Florida to Maine.

An accomplished musician, she played the piano, and organ, at many Bethel religious, social, and fraternal events, and truly enjoyed writing poetry.

Survivors include her husband of 55 years; two daughters, Gretchen Dock of Boston and Nancy Dock of San Diego, Calif.; two sons Stephen Dock and his wife Carolyn Wilson of Greenville, N.C., and Roger Dock and his wife Susanna of Glastonbury, Conn.; a sister, Kathryn Hamlin of Longmeadow, Mass.; two grandsons; and many nieces, nephews, and close friends. She was predeceased by a son, James, and a brother, Richard L. Davis.

Mrs. Dock's casket will be transported from the Greenleaf Funeral Home, about 9 a.m. Thursday morning, by a team of horses drawing an antique hearse driven by Pete Tripp. The procession will proceed to Main Street, to the Intervale Road, to her father's former home on Intervale Road, where the casket will be transferred to a motorized hearse for the remainder of the trip to the Intervale Meeting House.

Funeral services will be held at the Middle Intervale Meeting House, Intervale Road, East Bethel, on Thursday, Sept. 28, at 10 a.m. Interment will be in the Middle Intervale Cemetery, with military honors. Friends who wish may make memorial donations to: Bethel Rescue, c/o Mary Buckman, 549 Walkers Mills Road, Bethel, ME 04217.
